A communication was received from an engineer in the city of Richmond, applying for the position of city engineer for this city.

Clerk Smith was directed to reply to the communication by stating this city already had a competent engineer and that several thousand dollars' worth of street and sewer improvements had been made under his charge.

Storm sewer district No. 1 fund—

A dollar saved is not a dollar gained.

It is more.

Queer arithmetic? No.

The spirit, the sentiment, the inspiration that prompts the saving of the dollar is of infinite value. It means that a thinking-cap has been worn, that stock-taking has been carried out, and that right conclusions have been reached.

South City Merchants Lose to Team in Richmond.

Last Sunday the South City Merchants traveled to Richmond and played the Cheek Cubs. The Merchants are a much faster team than the Cubs, but nevertheless the Merchants were defeated, 10 to 8.

Pitcher Guenley failed to show up at the ferry, and it was then found that the South City Merchants without Guenley is like a ship without a rudder.

B. Russo did the twirling, but did not show very much. The Merchants were in the lead in the seventh inning, but could not keep it.

Merritt hit the ball hard, getting three doubles and a single in five attempts.

Note—There was no box score kept, as the fans in Richmond did not know what box score means. Chief Scorer J. Foley failed to accompany the team across the bay.

To-morrow the Merchants go to Melrose to play the Dimond Grocers.

PARTISANSHIP VS. NON-PARTISANSHIP

Governor Johnson on State Non-Active Campaign Against Non-Party Partisanship.

What we seek by the non-partisan laws is efficiency in government. No scheme devised by man can bring the political millennium. We hope by a comprehensive plan, where all else will be forgotten except the state and its service, to bring into the commonwealth in its servants a singleness of purpose and a higher patriotism. The state, after all, is the people's big business. Its manager should be selected because of his merit and ability, not because he belongs to a particular political party. The issue presented in these measures is partisanship or patriotism—service to party or to people. Without partisanship whole-hearted undivided service can be rendered by a public official; with partisanship he divides his service.

Blind partisanship has ever been the hope and the refuge of the unworthy politically. To-day in this struggle every product of the old machine, every man who was a part of it, every newspaper that received a bribe from it, every coterie that helped to make its iniquitous strength and power, are on the other side. Call the roll, my friends. Look over your community. Tally off the men upon the other side. Of course, there are many who conscientiously do not believe with us, and I would not have you think that I even criticize their position or their opinions in this campaign. I insist that every man who was a part of the old, crooked machine in the state of California, every one who profited from the vicious old system, every newspaper that fattened upon it, is against us in this struggle. A few who have been with us in the past are also against us, but fortunately those few you may number upon the fingers of one hand. It is but natural, of course, that on an abstract governmental policy such as is here presented there should be division among thinking men, who upon either side are entitled without criticism to their opinions; but what I call to your attention particularly is that in every instance where you have had in the past the adherent of the old, crooked regime in the state of California, there you find an opponent of the non-partisan laws.

Now, why is this? The reason is so plain that it ought not to require amplification. These men in the past learned that their lack of qualifications, their unworth, their want of merit, their lack of policies, were all forgotten in the partisan label which they wore, and they want to mask themselves in politics behind a partisan label. Partisanship makes an election depend upon the men of yesterday. Non-partisanship requires a decision between the men of to-day. The issue, presented to you in another form, is, shall a man stand before you politically in his own character and in his own personality, or shall he stand masked by the traditions of his ancestry? Non-partisanship makes a man stand before his people in his own character; partisanship enables him to masquerade behind his ancestors. What do you prefer, that your state officials shall be elected upon the traditions and strength of a political party, or upon their ability to fill the job? Every patriotic man and woman will answer, upon his ability to perform the service. And if this be the desideratum and the only test, why place another test, foreign wholly to the real purpose sought in your elections? A patriotic man or woman will think and then vote; a partisan just votes.

Visitor (at seance)—I want to talk with Mr. Brown.

Attendant—What Mr. Brown?

Visitor—I cannot remember his first name, but he is only lately deceased.

Attendant (formerly a department store worker)—Please show the gentleman some of the latest shades of Browns.

He was wandering aimlessly around in a department store when the floor-walker approached him.

"Looking for something?" he asked.

"Yes, my wife," replied the man.

"Describe her."

"Well, she's a sort of limousine with heavy tread, and usually runs on low."

Leaders in the republican and the democratic parties, members of the joint parties state committee, and others from the bay cities, formulated a plan of campaign against the non-partisan bills at a meeting last night at the Palace Hotel. As a result, headquarters of the campaign committee will be opened to-day at the Argonaut Hotel. A finance and a publicity committee meeting will be held this morning at the office of William C. Ralston. Speaking tours will be arranged at once, and a definite program of attack upon the non-party scheme will be adopted.

Former Governor J. N. Gillett and Senator John B. Curtin have already volunteered their services as speakers. Others equally prominent in state affairs will be enlisted to make the fight.

Reports received from various sections of the state, and particularly from Southern California, indicated that there is a widespread and definite opposition to the state administration's proposed destruction of party government in California.

William C. Ralston, chairman of the joint parties state committee, presided. He reviewed his interviews with national party leaders on his recent eastern trip. Ralston said that members of the national democratic administration, whom he had talked with at Washington, were favorable to the fight to retain party integrity in this state. He also said that advances from many individuals here showed that there was a strong sentiment against the non-party legislation.

Robert P. Troy, secretary of the democratic state central committee; Walter R. Bacon, chairman of the republican state executive committee; Henry M. Owens, chairman of the republican county central campaign committee, earnestly pointed out the need of immediate active organization work.

Former Governor Gillett said that the arguments which were being made for the non-partisan bills by Governor Johnson could be easily exploded. He declared that the scheme cut into the very roots of the national party system; that it was a dangerous and a crazy step, which would be fatal to the state. "This is not an office-seekers' fight," Gillett declared. "It is the fight of every man and woman in the state who believes in representative government."

Secretary H. H. McPike read a telegram from John B. Curtin, who said:

"From October 15th to October 26th, election day, I will campaign northern and central California against the non-partisan bills. Urge all democrats to go out and campaign. Party organization must be preserved. This government was founded on political differences. Party platforms require pledges as to policy, without which interest in public affairs ceases and one-man power follows. This state is now suffering and paying a heavy penalty for one-man power. Destroy it by preserving political parties. I will do my share."

Francis V. Keesling, chairman of the republican state central committee, reported that there was a keen interest in many counties in the fight, and he urged that the county committees of the various parties be called upon at once to arrange for public meetings. H. W. Brunk of Berkeley, Milton Schmitt and Hamilton Bauer made suggestions as to the campaign.—Chronicle, October 5, 1915.

"AFTER DARK"

Famous William A. Brady Drama, Presented by World Film.

On Sunday, October 10th, the Royal Theatre will show the five-part photoplay, William A. Brady's "After Dark," based upon the play by Dion Boucicault, which was a tremendous success on the regular stage. Old Tom was played in the theatres by no less a person than William A. Brady, who is now responsible for the photoplay, in which Alec B. Francis is to be the Old Tom. This is Mr. Francis' greatest opportunity in a career of several years in screen work.

Spanish-American war scenes precede a drama that is full of strong and varied action. Probably no World Film photodrama is so replete with sensational happenings which follow each other with exciting rapidity and suddenness. Old Tom is the real hero of the play. His wife's faithlessness drives him to despair and dissipation; he loses his daughter, but rescues her from drowning. The girl marries a man who is in trouble for forging, from which predicament he is rescued. Finally the young couple and the regenerated old man live in peace and happiness.

As a production "After Dark" has been done the amplest justice. It has the advantage of a powerful supporting cast and wonderfully effective settings.

"After Dark" is a photoplay that will hold all the time it is on the screen.

On Monday a four-part feature, "The Taint," will be shown, also a Chaplin comedy in one part, "Love Pangs."

Tuesday, Annette Kellerman, "the perfect woman," and a company of 1000 players will appear in a gorgeous and thrilling seven-part feature, "Neptune's Daughter."

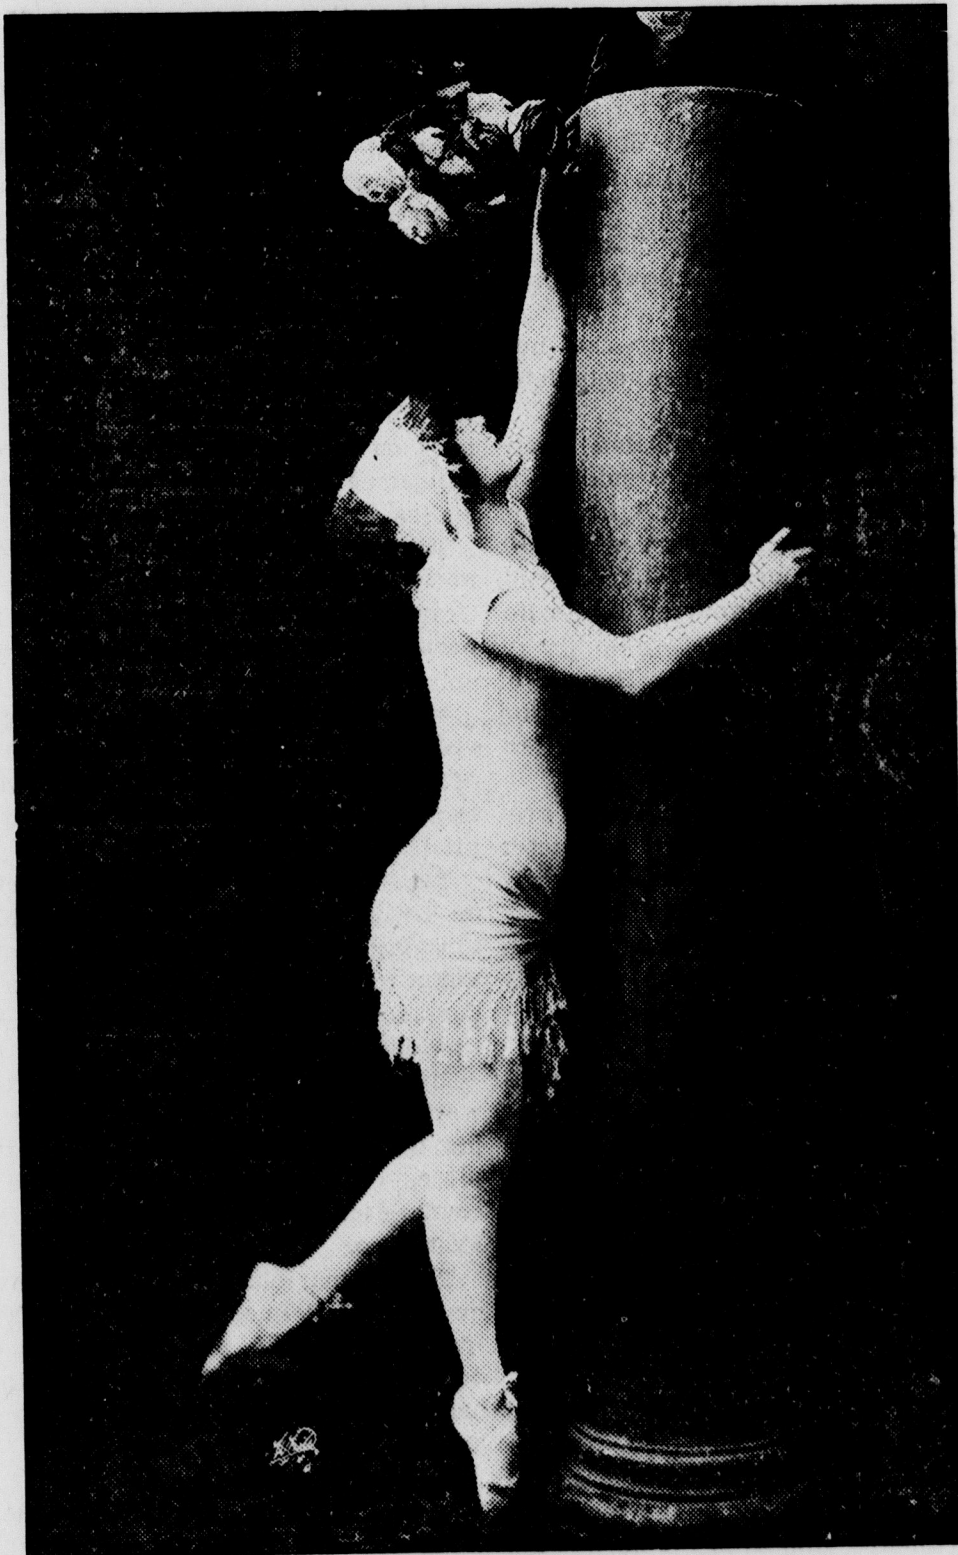

On Wednesday the professional tryouts will appear.

On Thursday a five-part Paramount, featuring W. S. Hart in "The Bargain," will be shown.

On Friday the last episode of "Elaine" will be shown.

Saturday, Hobart Bosworth will appear in an eight-part feature, "Burning Daylight."

Coming soon, the great American serial, "Neal of the Navy" and "Who Pays," a series of twelve three-act dramas.

FOUND IN A GLACIER.

Sir Martin Conway has recently told this story of finding a lost ax in the Alps: Zurbiggen, one of the celebrated mountain climbers of the world, in scaling a peak of Las Anglaises, near Chamounix, accidentally let his ax fall near the summit of the peak. It fell some thousands of feet. In the normal course of things it was buried in snow and swallowed up in the glacier, being covered deeper and deeper each year, and at the same time being carried slowly downward as the ice flowed on. Seven or eight years afterward Hon. C. G. Bruce and Harkbir, a Sepoy chief, in descending a peak of the Alps just as night was falling, and a great crevasse barred the way, being unable to find the bridge over it, cut a path down to the bottom, where Harkbir stepped on an ax which had M. Z. Zurbiggen's initials on the handle. There could be no mistake as to the identity of the ax, as Harkbir had seen it and used it before.

"How is it that one of those brothers succeeded so well in business while the other went to state prison?" "Well, you see, one forged ahead and the other forged a hand."

Gallant Major—It's glad I am to see ye about again, me dear lady; but what was it that was troubling ye?

Convalescent—I was very, very ill, major, through ptomaine poisoning. Major—Dear, dear, now! What with that an' delirium tremens you never know what to eat and drink now-days.

Warship Gun Rooms.

The gun room of a man-of-war is a cabin where midshipmen, naval cadets and other junior officers pass their time when they are off duty. It came to be called the gun room from being under the care of the gunner in days gone by.

HE KNEW THAT MONEY TALKS.

He couldn't talk English, though perhaps he understood a little, but he knew a thing or two. He was riding on a huckster's wagon past a public school. His partner had gone into a house to sell some truck, and he was learning the business. His clothes were ragged and shabby, much like those of the stage tramp. The children started to jeer at him making remarks about his clothes. He seemed to understand that they were making fun of his clothes, so he reached in his pocket and pulled out the bro-midio "roll of bills that would choke a cow." These bills he waved at the children, for apparently he believed that money would insure respect even if he did have old clothes.

It Really Made No Difference.

Young Arthur has not come up to his father's expectations in regard to his studies at school, and an explanation was demanded.

"Why is it, Arthur Wiggles," inquired the irate parent sternly, "that you are at the bottom of the class again?"

"I can't see that it makes much difference whether I am at the top or at the bottom," replied Arthur pacifically. "You know, they teach just the same at both ends."

Resourceful.

"What are your constituents going to do about the failure to get an appropriation for Crawfish creek?"

"I don't know," replied Senator Sorghum. "Maybe this year it will go dry for keeps. Then we might work up a proposition to loosen up some expenditures by having it paved as a public highway."

What It Would Have Said.

"So Miss Banger played for you, did she?" asked the friend of the musician. "You know, she claims that she can make the piano talk."

"If that instrument spoke at all," declared the musician peevishly, "I bet it would say: 'Woman, you have played me false.'"

THE ANNEXATION QUESTION.

The subject of merging San Mateo county with the city and county of San Francisco has again been brought to the attention of the people of this county by the statement of re-elected Mayor Rolph of that city, as follows: "I believe the people of San Mateo county are of the opinion that they would be benefited by becoming a part of San Francisco, so we are going to say to them that if such is their desire we will start a campaign to make them part of the greater city."

It is the same old story. The bugaboo "if" is always in the way. If nothing happens, the world will continue to turn on its axis for all time. San Mateo county residents have always been loyal to the commercial interests of San Francisco, and in what manner has that loyalty been acknowledged by those interests? This county has nearly completed the greatest system of modern highways of any county in the United States, and thousands of San Francisco autoists have been, until very recently, able to reach them only by one congested outlet.

The big interests of San Francisco should wake up. They are too slow. They should aid in the work of opening up and improving all highways in that city connecting with those in this county leading down the Peninsula.

Has the metropolis by the Golden Gate shown the true neighborly spirit toward us that it should?

The Enterprise says no! Even with its modern and influential newspapers, it seems afraid it might disturb the progress of its across-the-bay rival.

No, Mr. Rolph, San Mateo county will never ask to be annexed to your city while present conditions prevail.

There is a more sensible plan. Make this suggestion to your people: "All citizens of the city of San Francisco who desire a larger and more beautiful San Francisco should immediately make their homes in San Mateo county, and invite their neighbors to do the same."

Don't you see, Mr. Rolph, that it would not take long before this county would be so completely colonized with greater city citizens that they would be strong enough with their votes to THEN ask to be annexed to the metropolis?

Of course, the plan of government of the greater city would have to be satisfactory to the present property owners of this county before annexation could be brought about successfully.

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT NOTES.

Unknown persons have lately been committing nuisances at the school houses. Arrangements have been made by the school trustees to capture and punish the miscreants if possible.

The blackboards at the school houses have been cleaned and refinished, and eight additional drinking fountains installed.

Solid soap and cloth towels at the school houses have been displaced by liquid soap and paper towels.

The local board of school trustees adopted a resolution at its last meeting thanking the Western Meat Company, Steiger Terra Cotta Company and W. P. Fuller & Co. for the cordial treatment extended the members of the teachers' institute of San Mateo and Mariposa counties while it was in session in this city last week.

A New Piano "Method."

"Your daughter," said the visitor in the den of Pa Dingbat, "seems to play some very muscular pieces on the piano."

"Yes," growled Pa Dingbat; "she's got a beau in the parlor, and that noise is to drown the sound of her mother washing up the dishes."

"Yes," said the world traveler, "the Chinese make it an invariable rule to settle all their debts on New Year's day."

"So I understand," said the host, "but, then, the Chinese don't have a Christmas the week before."

FRATERNAL ORDERS

(By Harry Edwards.)

Some men are so sure they have a future eternity in which to love their fellow-men and practice brotherhood that they omit to do it now.

Be selfish enough to wish all the good you can for your fellow-men, and get all the more happiness for yourself—the dividends are sure.

Of all the accomplishments, friendship alone is enduring.

When the Lone Star state was called in a recent fraternal convention, a brawny specimen of southern manhood stepped into the aisle and with exceeding pride said, "We represent the great state of Texas. The first white woman born in Texas is still living. She now has a population of over three millions."

L. O. O. M.

If a man stumbles, it is a good thing to help him to his feet. Every one of us needs a helping hand now and then. The helping hand was extended to fifty or more citizens of South San Francisco Thursday evening last, when that number became members of the Loyal Order of Moose, Lodge No. 832. It was a record-breaking event, and places the L. O. O. M. in the front rank of all the various fraternities located in South San Francisco. That this is so is due to the activity of Dictator Hyde, Past Dictator Charles Woodman, Vice-Dictator R. E. Setter and Secretary Veit, with every member of the lodge working harmoniously for the advancement of the principles of Purity, Aid and Progress.

When Colonel Eaton grasped the hand of Colonel Lind we knew something would be doing later. On the drill team and drum corps of San Francisco Lodge, No. 26, fell the work of presenting and conducting the initiatory ceremony.

Many members of the order from San Francisco and San Mateo were present.

Dr. Leo J. Flanagan was the victim, and he declared to the writer "That was the finest work I ever passed through. Certainly the ceremony makes me a Loyal Moose, and from now on I will work for the upbuilding of this splendid order."

All the newly initiated members coincided with the doctor's remarks, and the prediction made that No. 832 would soon become the banner lodge of the county.

The initiatory ceremony was followed with a splendid collation of eatables and drinkables, which were partaken of by over 300 Moose.

No. 832 is winning its widening way into the hearts of its members, and pro rata in population will soon become the largest lodge in the state.

I. O. F.

(By George W. Hagedorn.)

Court Violet, No. 1453, Independent Order of Foresters, held its regular meeting Tuesday evening, at which the different committees reported as to the progress of the work on hand.

The committee on campaign is organizing a large class for the 1st of December initiation, and an active time is ahead for the members who are out for the gold prizes that will be awarded by High Court Secretary E. W. Cameron.

The entertainment committee is composed of young people, Foresters and Companions, who have an ideal program ready, from whist parties to the public Christmas tree, that will enliven the social features of South San Francisco. It seems as if Robert Burns must have been a prophet. He said:

Let it come, and come it will,
It is coming, too, for a' that;
That man to man, the world o'er
Shall brothers be and a' that.

South San Francisco is the home of the fraternalist. For the size of the city in population it is hard to find a city in the world that can show more number of membership in the fraternal world than we have here. And it is a fact that in no other community is the home more protected against sickness, accident or death. The social features are always well attended. The watchword is charity, and happiness and content is found everywhere.

Everybody knows that when you have protection your loved ones will be taken care of after you have passed away, the children taken care of as well as the widow provided for.

If one should become afflicted with the great white plague, you know that you will be cured if there is a cure for you, without expense. If you are in need of an operation the best surgeons obtainable will work upon you without expense, and when becoming old, you know you have something coming without expense. Knowing that we are protected by these organizations, it is our duty to mankind to plead with the straggler to better his conditions of life and enjoy the sunny side of living.

The doctors were holding a consultation in the adjoining room, and the patient was anxiously awaiting the verdict.

"Do you think they'll find it necessary to operate?" he asked of the nurse at his bedside.

"They haven't decided yet," said the nurse. "They're looking up your commercial rating now."

Moral—Protect yourself and you will need no rating.

During a particularly nasty dust-storm at one of the camps a recruit ventured to seek shelter in the sacred precincts of the cook's domain.

After a time he broke an awkward silence by saying to the cook:

"If you put the lid on that camp-kettle you would not get so much of the dust in your soup."

The irate cook glared at the intruder, and then broke out:

"See here, my lad, your business is to serve your country."

"Yes," interrupted the recruit, "but not to eat it."

A young lady who lisped very badly was treated by a specialist, and after diligent practice and the expenditure of some money learned to say: "Sister Susie's sewing shirts for soldiers."

She repeated it to her friends at a private rehearsal, and was congratulated upon her masterly performance. "Yeth," she said dubiously, "but it it thuth an ectheedingly difficult remark to work into a converthathion—ethpeethially when you conthider that I have no thither Thuthie."—Current Opinion.

The hero-worshiping young girl was fluttering about the soldier just returned from the war. "They tell me," she said, "that in times of danger you were as cool as an iceberg."

"I should say I was," said the young soldier. "Why, I was so cool I actually shivered."

He Caught It.

"The trouble with you is the same as with Mr. Brown," said the doctor. "He was worrying himself to death about his grocer's bill. Now he is cured."

"But how did you cure him?" asked the patient.

"I told him to stop worrying and he has," replied the doctor.

"I know," was the sad answer; "I know he has. But I am his grocer."

Good Intentions

What a difference between that which is behind and that before us! We move on from day to day in grooves that it would seem will be everlasting. Then suddenly we make a sharp turn. There is a saying, "It is the unexpected that happens." The reason for the adage is that now and again the unexpected does happen and is noticeable.

The unexpected happened with me one summer, and it was the most important event for me between birth and death. It was not only unexpected, but unintentional. It was not only unintentional, but contrary to my determination. Fate, ignoring my resolutions, led me into a trap, and before I was aware of it, presto, change! I was not the same man I had been before.

In the first place, I did not wish to go for a summer outing. I was much interested in a business scheme, and it required not only a doctor, but my mother, to drive me away from it. In the second place, I had repeatedly told my mother that my home would be with her and her alone so long as she lived. No third person, especially a woman, should come into the house to usurp her place as its manager. In the third place, if I must go away for a rest I proposed to get a rest and would go where no one would interfere with my quiet. Now, mark you how these intentions went awry.

I chose a summer hotel in the mountains in which I understood there were to be a medium number of guests. I did not wish too small a number, for a few persons under one roof are liable to wrangle. I did not wish too large a number because in that case one cannot be quiet. I was driven from the station to the Chuchihoochee Inn, alighted from the cab on to the steps leading up to the porch, handed a small satchel to a hotel attendant, paid the cabman and turned to go up on to the porch.

A pair of feminine arms was thrown around my neck, and a pair of lips pressed to mine.

Taken by surprise, I acted as nature prompted. My embrace was too close to me for me to determine whether she was beautiful, but the impulse of her act indicated that she was young. The lips, too, were not within my vision, and the sweetness might have been due to imagination. But what mattered the cause since they were sweet? Nor did I meditate upon what person the lady might be, whether cousin or intimate friend. I returned the embrace with something of the fervor with which it was given. That is, I began the return thus, but before it was concluded my own best was superior to that of the lady.

"Oh, Tom," she exclaimed, "what a joyful meeting after so many years' separation!"

"Delightful!" I stammered, unwilling to seem irresponsible till I could come to a better understanding of the matter.

"If it hadn't been something about your figure and the way you carry yourself I doubt if I should have known you."

"You, too, have changed; much improved."

"I'm so glad you think so! I feared you would be disappointed in me."

This brief dialogue occurred while we were pausing up on the porch. Had it not been for a disinclination to dash cold water upon the girl's happiness, to turn it into mortification, I might have told her that she must surely have mistaken me for some one else. This is the reason I give for not having done so, but there was another more powerful reason that I will not put in words. Nevertheless, I will say this: I defy any man who has tasted a pair of sweet lips of a girl who has made a mistake in his identity to turn upon her immediately and announce the fact.

I took a seat beside the young lady on the porch, but when she began to ask questions which would undoubtedly betray me I beat a retreat, telling her that as soon as I had got some of the dust of travel off me I would return to her. Entering the house, I was shown to a room on the second floor overlooking the porch.

I was performing my ablutions near a window when I saw a cab enter the grounds and stop at the steps below. A young man alighted as I had alighted a few minutes before, and I witnessed a scene that chilled the very marrow in my bones. Leaning out of the window that I might extend the range of my vision, I saw him approach the young lady I had recently left.

"Aren't you Belle Lawrence?" he asked.

"Why, yes," doubtfully.

"I'm Tom, Tom Underwood. Don't you know me?"

"You Tom Underwood?"

"Certainly. You received my telegram, didn't you?"

"Your telegram? Yes, I received your telegram, but—"

"But what?"

The girl stood as if bewildered, then led the way into the house, and I saw and heard no more.

To tell the truth, I was relieved that I would not have to explain to the girl that she had made a mistake and that—well, that I had not at once disabused her of it. Nature is very strong, and I confess that the ascendant feeling in me was antagonism to the fellow who was doubtless receiving a duplicate of the bill given me. At the same time I felt that I occupied an equivocal position. I did not like the idea of meeting the girl again. How would she regard me? Doubtless as an impostor. If I passed her on the porch or elsewhere about the house or grounds she would cut me with one contemptuous glance.

And now I must make a confession, a confession of cowardice. There is something of the coward about one who has wronged another, and I felt that I should cringe before this girl I had permitted to think I was her lover. True, I did not kiss her. She kissed me, and so quickly that I could not prevent her doing so. But I acknowledged to myself that I would not have prevented her if I had had no end of time.

I did not dare go downstairs to supper, but ordered a meal served in my room. Contemptible creature that I was, I did not dare go out of it, intending to get away by an early train the next morning.

About 9 o'clock there came a knock at my door, and in walked the man I had personated. He resembled me, but it seemed to me there was considerable difference in our appearance. There was a thundercloud on his brow. "I'm in for it," I said to myself, "but, thank heaven, it's not the girl I have to face."

For a few minutes I listened to a tongue lashing such as I have never heard before or since. At first I bowed before the storm, but presently my anger began to rise. Not one word did I speak during that tempestuous interview, the hurricane blowing all one way, till, like a thunderbolt, I fell upon my visitor and sent him sprawling on the floor.

He rose with blood in his eye and was coming for me when he suddenly restrained himself. "This is no place and no way to settle so important a matter. You will hear from me presently."

With that he went out, slamming the door, and I heard him stamping down the corridor. It was 11 o'clock when a young man who gave his name as McCabe came to my room with a challenge. I was expected to meet Mr. Thomas Underwood the next morning at sunrise at such place as I might designate. Not seeing how I could refuse, I consented to do so, provided Mr. McCabe would act as my second as well as that of my opponent. I also wrote a note to be given the young lady at such time as McCabe thought proper, apologizing for not having made her instantly aware of her mistake. Having settled these matters with my visitor, he departed. I sent word to the office that I should be called at an early hour in the morning, and then turned in, my mind having been relieved by my apology to the lady and punching her lover, I fell into a comfortable slumber.

The next morning as I went out on the porch, who should be waiting for me but the young lady whose blunder had made all the trouble. She advanced toward me.

"Where are you going?" she asked. "To leave by train," I replied, bravely lying.

"No, you're not. You're going out to fight Mr. Underwood."

"Did he tell you that?"

"No, but I suspected it. I have lain in wait for you to stop this nonsense. I couldn't do anything with him. I'm going to see if you have better sense."

I wondered for a moment, then told her I owed Mr. Underwood satisfaction for knocking him down and felt obliged to give it to him.

"Very well," she replied. "I'll go with you."

At that moment Mr. McCabe appeared. He seemed much surprised to see Miss Lawrence and was not averse to her going with us to the grounds with a view to stopping what he considered an unfortunate affair. We walked half a mile, then turned off the road and, passing into an open space behind some trees, found my enemy waiting for me. Underwood, on seeing Miss Lawrence, looked thunderstruck.

"Tom," she said, "you are about to act very unjustly on account of what was not this gentleman's fault, but mine. You are going to punish me through him. I wish you to apologize to him for having said anything to him about a matter which was mine, not yours."

"I'll do no such thing," said Underwood savagely. "If you prefer him to me, say so and have done with it."

"I certainly prefer the way he is acting to the stand you take."

"Then you choose between us and choose him."

"I certainly don't choose you unless you come to your senses."

"If I can't fight him here I'll fight him elsewhere."

"If you fight him at all you may consider all off between us."

"So let it be." And, turning his back on us, he strode away bristling with anger.

I never saw Mr. Underwood again, but I saw a great deal of Miss Lawrence. Indeed, instead of spending my outing alone I spent it with her constant companionship. When I returned to the city I informed my mother that I had gone back on my volunteered promise to live with her alone so long as she lived. Fortunately she had the good sense to resign her position as head of my house and cheerfully turned it over to my wife.

Napoleon Bonaparte said, "I will control circumstances." Since he failed in doing so I feel excusable for going back on my resolutions.

PETRIFIED HEART FOUND.

Ernest Hawkins, a young man of Ridgefield, Wash., while engaged in hunting for Indian arrowheads and other Indian curios at what is called an old Indian arrow bed, about a mile north of Ridgefield along the shore of Lake river, recently picked up an unusual curio having the appearance of a petrified heart of an infant.

It is said by old timers that Indians had a burying ground near where the petrified heart was found. Each year as the water washes down the bank more relics have been found, and the burying ground is exposed.

Easy.

Marriage was the subject under discussion at the sewing party.

"I could never understand the Bible reference to marriages in heaven," said Mrs. Jones thoughtfully. "Why do you suppose there is no marrying or giving in marriage there?"

"That's easy," said a sarcastic spinster. "There probably isn't a man in the place."

A. J. Drexell, praising the English volunteer army, said in New York the other day:

"Oxford and Cambridge undergraduates fight side by side with coal miners. Peers' sons and millionaires' sons hobnob with plumbers and blacksmiths in the ranks."

"There are lots of 'nuts' (dudes) in the volunteer army—and the kaiser finds them pretty hard to crack, too—notwithstanding their lack of shells."

DETECTIVE KINDELON PROMOTED.

P. J. Kindelon, one of the best-known railroad detectives west of the Rockies, has been appointed chief special agent of all divisions of the Southern Pacific Company. The appointment took effect on October 1st. Kindelon now has the distinction of having the largest territory of any chief special agent in the United States. It extends from Portland to Ogden, Ogden to San Francisco and San Francisco to El Paso.

Kindelon is a native of Ireland. He came to New York with his parents in 1860 in a clipper ship. In 1867 he went to work on the Central Pacific and later helped to build the Stockton and Copperopolis railroad. In 1872 he joined the New York police force as patrolman, later became detective and then spent three years in Inspector Thorn's office. In 1880 he went to work for the Southern Pacific, where he has worked continually for thirty-two years without missing a day. He was elected president of the international association of railway special agents and police in 1913.

Kindelon's headquarters will be in San Francisco. Agent Daniel O'Connell will be his lieutenant on the northern division, with headquarters at Portland, and Barney McShane on the southern district, with headquarters at Los Angeles.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNTY BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

The county board of supervisors at its regular session in Redwood City last Monday disposed of considerable routine business.

In addition, the following was transacted:

A communication was received from James E. Eubanks, superintendent of the county farm and hospital, showing in detail the cost of conveying indigents to the farm from the different parts of the county and what saving could be effected if the hospital were provided with an automobile.

The communication was referred to the county farm committee.

Another communication was received from Superintendent Eubanks, inclosing copy of a letter from the state board of control, in which notification was given of the withdrawal of state aid in a number of cases.

The communication was ordered filed.

A communication was received from the Southern Pacific Company calling the board's attention to the practice indulged in by a Mrs. J. Kendall of Visitation of pasturing her cows along the railroad right of way near the station at that place, thereby involving the possibility of the cattle roaming on the track and being struck by some passing trains.

On motion of Supervisor Casey, seconded by Supervisor MacBain, the clerk was instructed to notify the poundmaster of the first township to investigate the above matter and to take care of the cows.

A petition was received from Angelo Stampanoni and others, requesting that the county surveyor be instructed to make a survey and secure the necessary grade of certain streets in the town of Colma. The petition was granted on motion of Supervisor Casey, seconded by Supervisor Brown.

The returns of the election held at San Bruno, September 28th, for the dissolution of the San Bruno Park lighting district were received, showing 115 votes in favor of said dissolution and none against.

A resolution declaring said result in accordance with the above, and ordering the dissolution of the San Bruno Park lighting district, also further ordering the transferring of all property of said lighting district within the limits of the city of San Bruno to said city, was adopted on motion of Supervisor Casey, seconded by Supervisor MacBain.

The petition of T. J. Callan and other residents of the Colma lighting district, asking for the installation of a light on Briggs street, and also on North Washington street, was granted on motion of Supervisor MacBain, seconded by Supervisor Casey.

On motion of Supervisor Brown, seconded by Supervisor Casey, it was decided that the board should attend in a body the meeting in San Francisco of the California state commission to consider the matter of holding intact the various county exhibits until the next meeting of the legislature.

Engineer Neuman addressed the board in reference to a more rigid enforcement of the traffic ordinance and stated that the traffic officers should be given definite orders, so that they could know just how far they could extend their authority in the matter of arresting offenders of the ordinance.

This brought District Attorney Swart before the board. He stated that he was not satisfied with the way the traffic officers are now working on account of the lack of co-operation and harmony and spoke of the need of an organized system. He stated that the law provides that the district attorney shall have control of the traffic officers, and he asked the board to adopt a resolution he had prepared giving him this control.

After considerable discussion in the matter, the resolution prepared by the district attorney was adopted on roll call by the following vote: Ayes, and in favor of said adoption, Supervisors Casey, MacBain and Francis; noes, and against said adoption: Supervisors Brown and Thompson. The following is the resolution:

"Whereas, This board desires closer co-operation and more harmonious and systematic work for the motorcycle officers of the county; and

"Whereas, Under the present system there is a tendency among the officers not to work at fixed periods of time and under a unified system; and

"Whereas, The board of supervisors is desirous of increasing the efficiency of these motorcycle officers; be it

"Resolved and ordered, That this board place the control of the motorcycle officers, and all officers who may work upon the public roads doing police duty, entirely under the direction of the district attorney of the county; and be it

"Resolved further, That this board will support and stand behind the district attorney in the employing of necessary men and in the discharging of such men as neglect to do or will not do their full duty, or who fail or neglect to work in harmony with the officers of the county or who disobey the orders of the district attorney; and be it

"Resolved further, That this board will not attempt to or will not hire men to do police duty and will not give orders to said motorcycle officers, but will leave their control entirely with the district attorney; and be it

"Resolved, That said district attorney shall have full control of the purchasing of necessary supplies, material and apparatus for said motorcycle officers; and be it

"Resolved further, That it is the sense of this board that no officer of San Mateo county, or any person, shall interfere with said officers in any manner to use influence in behalf of any persons arrested or who are about to be arrested."

A communication was received from P. G. Kunze and wife of Colma, asking for the removal of certain obstructions on public streets leading to their home in the above town.

On motion of Supervisor Casey, seconded by Supervisor MacBain, the surveyor was instructed to make a survey of the street in question and define the proper lines.

Recorder H. O. Heiner addressed the board in reference to a lost claim covering the purchase of a typewriter some time ago. He was instructed to make out a duplicate claim and present same in the regular order.

Talks on Thrift

(American Bankers' Association.)

The Bread Line and the Bank Line.

Stretching clear around the block at Broadway and Eleventh street, New York, any night at 12 o'clock will be found a line of hungry, dejected, unkempt, homeless men. Some are old, some young, some middle-aged. But all are men, waiting for the cup of coffee and the roll which has been theirs for the taking every night at 12 o'clock for these many years and will be for many years to come. It is the famous bread line, with tragedy all its own.

Stretching not so far, a few blocks to the north, almost any day will be found another line of clear-eyed, well-dressed and prosperous looking men and women, waiting to put their savings in the bank. It is the bank line. It has no fame, for no one has ever written it up. It has no tragic, no pitiful side.

The bank line stands erect; the bread line droops. The bank line moves fast; the bread line slowly. The bank line has something else to do; the bread line hasn't.

Ask the men of the bread line: How came you here? and they will answer, poor training, bad environment, bad companions, idleness, shiftlessness, drink. Some may have been unfortunate, some misguided or unguided, some inherently bad, some weak; but as a rule thriftlessness in some form brought them here.

Ask the bank line: What brought you here? and they will answer, good home influences, proper training, good management, economy, care, thought, hard work, sobriety, honesty, integrity, thrift.

Ask the bread line: What of the future? and they will tell you they don't know—the park, the poorhouse, potter's field, when the bread line no longer finds them able to stand in line for a sip of coffee and the little roll.

Ask the bank line: What of your future? and they will tell you peace, comfort and contentment. The rainy day has no terrors for them; let the bread line worry about the weather.

The bread line's good times are in the past—gone. The bank line's good times are in future—coming. The bank line's good times may not have as many thrills as the bread line's good times have had, or be quite so hilarious, but they will last longer and be more satisfying.

The bank line has worked on the proposition that 2 plus 2 equals 4, while the bread line has worked on the theory that 2 minus 2 equals 0. Both are mathematically correct; but the minus proposition has more hurts in it than the plus. And the hurts last a long time.

The roll and the coffee of the bread line are as near nothing as a man can eat; but the bankbook in the hand of the bank line is the best thing a man can have. It will never desert him. It will stick by him in any kind of weather. It will feed him, nurse him and pay his rent. It will bury him, and the bread line never does that.

Humanity divides itself into these two lines, the bread line, going down hill, and the bank line going up; the bread line, whose future is behind them, and the bank line, whose future is before. It is to choose between them.

"My husband has found a way by which he says I am of the greatest help to him in his literary work."

"How nice that must be for you, my dear. But how are you able to do it?"

"As soon as I see him at the desk I go into another room and keep perfectly quiet until he has finished."

* Rural Constable—Sketching the harbor is forbidden, sir.

Artist—Oh, that's all right. I'm making a study of clouds.

Rural Constable (impressively)—Ah, but supposin' your picture got into the hands of the enemy's aircraft department, see the use they could make of it!

"Why doesn't the policeman pay his fare?" inquired the old gentleman on the twopenny tram, observing that no money passed between the constable and the conductor.

"Well, you know, sir," explained the conductor, "you can't get twopence out of a copper."

Maid (knocking in the morning)—Madame, I've forgotten whether you wanted to be waked at seven or eight.

"What time is it now?"

"Eight."
